me, and loving you I pine away among flowery beds fanned by beavenly breezes.'

P. 47. l. 1.—流河 &c. That is, will he say that he loves me or will he say that he does not love me?

P. 47. l. 2.— णं भणिदं एवं &c. why, do not you see that the answer is given already by his limbs which have become as thin and flaccid through his yearning for you as a stalk of the lotus?

P. 47. l. 3.—सोन्यिनाअणं. A present given such as is described in our note to Málavikágnimitra p. 17. l. 2 (which see) on an occasion when the Brahman or Brahmans pronounce blessings by reciting verses from holy writs.

P. 48. 11. 1-4.—तुन्य &c. Katavema: तुन्यानुरागित्यादि | तुन्यानुरागित्रानं प्रेमसूचकं लिलाधिनन्वं लिलाति मधुर: अर्थस्य वस्तुनी बन्धः संसगी यस्य तत्त्रथीकं पत्रे निविधातं विन्यस्तं प्रियाया उदाहरणं वाचिकं हे सखे उत्प्रक्ष्मणी मम भाननेन समागतं तस्या मिदिरक्षणाया भाननिम भवति ॥ अत्र विशेषप्रतिपादनात् पुष्यं नाम संध्यक्षमुकं भवति ॥

Ranganatha too says उराइरम् अक्तः. He goes on: पत्रे तदुक्तिमात्रनिरे ज्ञानमात्रेणैव ममाननं तस्या आननेन समागतं मिळितमिवेत्युत्प्रेक्षा ॥

But neither commentator correctly explains the word उदाहरणम्, which does not simply mean 'saying,' 'expression,' but a song, a piece of poetry. Conf.
